Pinot Noir Reserve 2017

Willamette Valley, Oregon

ESTATE

In the late 1960s Dick and Nancy Ponzi uprooted their family to pursue a dream of producing world class Pinot Noir. After trips to Burgundy and extensive research, they settled just southwest of Portland, Oregon. They believed the climate, soils and vineyard site met every need of noble cool-climate grape varieties. The first 4 barrels of wine were produced in 1974. At the time, there were 5 bonded wineries in Oregon with 35 acres in production. For the last 25 years President Maria Ponzi and Winemaker Luisa Ponzi have brought the estate to even greater heights, setting the standard for Oregon and remaining at the forefront of the nation's top wine producers.

WINE

Beginning with the 2017 vintage, Ponzi's Pinot Noir Reserve comes exclusively from estate fruit, including from some of Oregon's oldest vines. Bright red fruit character in their youth gave way to dark berry and brambly spice as the vines reached into the volcanic layers. The Pinot Noir Reserve's brooding dark fruit and exotic spice has rendered it one of the ultimate examples of artisanal, site-expressive Pinot Noir in the United States today, year after year epitomizing a character of restrained power.

VINEYARD

As a true Reserve, or barrel select, it is a blend of top barrels from Ponzi's Aurora, Abetina, Madrona and Avellana Vineyards, all of which are LIVE Certified Sustainable. Higher elevation sites and younger vineyards contribute bright red fruit and floral character while the lower elevation sites and older vineyards bring darker fruit and brambly spice character, all seamlessly knit together by fine, chalky tannin.

VINTAGE

The 2017 vintage was a welcome throwback to more classic vintages after five consecutive warm years. The winter was unusually cold, which extended into a cool spring. Fortunately, the Willamette Valley was spared any effect from the smoke and may have even benefited from some protection from sunburn in the hottest part of the summer. Reminiscent of recent 2010 and 2011 vintages, 2017 will be one to enjoy immediately and for the long term.

"Attractive ripe and pure red cherry fruit that is nicely framed in spice, conifer-forest and sweet-earth elements. The palate has a bold heart of concentrated red-cherry flavor and delivers a bold, youthful and succulent finish. Impressive." - J.S., 6/2021
